Freshers week 2008

- Last year was okay but we could probably make it better
- Lots of people signed up for trips but didn't turn up on the day
- Promotion was good at the squash – table looked good and people did a good job of chatting to fresh. Squash this year to be held on sun 28th.
- Ed is going to send off the form to ensure that club activity during freshers week is in the booklet.
- We will also put up posters in halls and on campus promoting the quay trips, pool sessions and club in general. Emily will make
- All information about the club should be put on a leaflet (A6) to be handed to freshers at the squash. Emily will make
- 5-6 freshers trips daily on Wed, Thur, Fri
- Someone to stay at the lemmy all the time to meet people
- Someone to shuttle the bus
- Others split into sign up/promotional group and paddling group. (Everyone promotion at start, everyone paddle on Friday)
- Polo is weak within the club so members that joined who were interested in that have left. Hopefully will be better next year
- Decided to not have an official social during freshers week but go out as a club in stash on a few nights
- First social last year worked better than in previous years, Nik may use Hogs Head again.
- Everyone is to big up the Adventure ball from the beginning

Kit

- Need more kit before France trip, as shown from inventory
- It is the responsibility of last years committee to ensure that we have everything we need and boats are allocated

- The old and new committee need to make sure they communicate about things relevant to both.
- Problems with budget – kit replacement fund may be much lower than last year. Lynne is investigating.

BCU

- Lots of complications
- Most other universities are also unable to comply with regulations and don't pay liscences
- Ed is willing to approach them/email them to discuss the possibility of establishing a university club membership policy.
